

MANY PARADES ARRANGED FOR MEMORIAL DAY

Gov. Miller to Be the Chief Speaker at Grant's Tomb Exercises—Other Features.

Memorial Day services will be held to-morrow in all parts of the city, with Grant's Tomb, the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument and the thinned line of Civil War veterans as special features.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars will place a four-foot wreath of poppies at the foot of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument as their share in the celebration here. This will be preceded by the usual parade. At the time this wreath is being placed in New York one similar in size will be laid on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Washington. U. S. Grant Post No. 327 will be in charge of the exercises at Grant's Tomb, where Gov. Miller will deliver the chief address at 2 P. M.

Five thousand World War veterans will join in the exercises of the unveiling of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney's war sculpture group, symbolic of America's sacrifice, at 16th Street and Broadway. This war monument originated with the Washington Heights Memorial Association. The ceremony will begin at 3 o'clock. Col. William Hayward will be Marshal of the parade preceding the ceremony. Mrs. Whitney will witness the unveiling of her work.

There will be a special ceremony at Theodore Roosevelt's grave at Oyster Bay in which a group of cadets from Roosevelt Military Academy at West Englewood, N. J., will take part. The grave of Dr. McGlynn in Calvary Cemetery will be remembered by his admirers. Addresses will be made by Edward Polak and Cornelius M. Sheehan.

A field mass will be celebrated at 10 A. M. at the City College Stadium under the auspices of the Catholic Bureau, Boy Scouts of America. This will be preceded by a parade of the scouts. The celebrant of the mass will be the Rev. Bryan J. McEntegart. The Rev. Dominic Cirigliano will preach.

Augustus Thomas, the Rev. Edwin Fairley and Arthur Outram Sherman will be the speakers at the grave of Thomas Paine at New Rochelle. The exercises there will begin at half-past 2 o'clock.

CONFEDERATE VETERANS HONOR THEIR DEAD HERE

Make Their Annual Pilgrimage to Mount Hope Cemetery.

Henry M. Klübe, 81, of No. 1674 Boston Road, Bronx, headed the Civil War veterans of the Confederate Veterans' Camp of New York yesterday when they made their annual pilgrimage to the burial ground of the Confederate dead—Mount Hope Cemetery, near Hastings.

Fifty members of the camp were in line for the trip. Sons and Daughters of Confederate Veterans and several auxiliaries assisted in the services which were said to be the only observance of Confederate Decoration Day in the Bronx. Bishop Thomas F. Gallor, formerly of Tennessee, officiated. The Rev. Nathan A. Sengio delivered the memorial address. Next Sunday the camp members will go to the 71st Regiment plot in Mount Hope and take part in the ceremonies there on the unveiling of the shaft over the Bronx veterans.

The Confederate plot at Mount Hope is said to be the only Confederate burying ground north of the Mason and Dixon Line. Buried there are Joseph Green, James Brant, Capt. George English, Col. Hardy, George Caldwell and a number of other prominent Confederates. There is a shaft there to the Southern veterans erected by Charles Broadway House.

TRIPLE SLAYING RUMOR STILL UNCONFIRMED

Phone Calls Fail to Verify Reported Tennessee Tragedy.

LOUISVILLE, May 29.—Long distance telephone messages to-day failed to verify widely circulated reports that three women had been murdered in Clay County, Tennessee, as the result of an alleged plot to rob a farm of $1,800, said to have been the proceeds of the sale of his farm. The story first gained circulation in Bowling Green, Ky., the basis for it, it was said, coming from a visitor.

A message from Tompkinsville, Ky., near the Tennessee line, to-day said the authorities at Colina, Tenn., county seat of Carter County, had declared the report untrue.

AUDREY MUNSON RECOVERING, NOW DESIRES TO LIVE

Artists' Model and Screen Star Says Worry Led Her to Take Poison.

SYRACUSE, May 29.—Audrey Munson, former artists' model and film star, is recovering from the effects of the poison she took Saturday following receipt of a telegram, the contents of which were not divulged.

The young woman says she wants to live and that her worries had been so great of late that she hardly knew what she was doing when she took the poison.

Her mother blames newspapers and the movies for her daughter's attempted suicide. Miss Munson herself has repeatedly declared that plots against her had been successful, depriving her of a fortune which she earned as "The Queen of the Studios."

TO FORCE CHICAGO LABOR MEN TO QUIT

Unless Building Trades Leaders Resign Bondsman Will Surrender Them.

CHICAGO, May 29.—Thomas Carey, millionaire brick manufacturer, who obtained the release of Fred Mader, head of the Building Trades Council, and "Big Tim" Murphy, following their indictment in connection with Chicago's bomb war and the slaying of two policemen, insisted to-day that the two labor leaders comply immediately with their agreement to relinquish control of the council.

"Mader gave me his promise to resign and assist in choosing his own successor," Mr. Carey said. "If he refuses to abide by his promise I'll surrender him and withdraw as his surety."

HOTTENTOTS IN REBELLION

LONDON, May 29.—A rebellion has broken out among the Hottentots in the Southwest Protectorate of Africa, says a despatch from Cape Town, attributed to a tendency of the natives to mistake kindness for weakness. The insurgent tribe, called Bondelswarts, numbers only 2,000 to 3,000. A skirmish is reported, with four Hottentots and one policeman killed and nine natives captured.

Reel Reviews

By DON ALLEN

The movie folks who have the selecting of the films for Broadway showings sorted spoiled a nice opening paragraph for us by omitting to include in their menu a Lloyd Hamilton release. Had a Hamilton film a place in the list, we intended to write: "Broadway's movie melange" this week runs from the sublime to the ridiculous," allowing William Fox's "Nero" to take care of the sublime end of the combination with Hamilton bringing up the ridiculous.

Anyway, the gamut runs from the sublimity of the aforementioned "Nero," at the Lyric, to "Yellow Men and Gold," the bloodthirsty offering at the Capitol, which, to all intents and purposes, covers the same ground.

Agnes Ayres is the featured player in "The Ordeal," now unravelling at the Rialto, while at the sister-house, the Rivoli, they have insisted upon showing "The Loves of Pharaoh," on view so long at the Criterion.

It looks as though Richard Barthelmess has discovered a successor to "Tobacco David" in "Sonny," his latest starring film, now showing for the week at the Strand.

"Silver Wings," sentimentally smothered in mother-love, at the Apollo, "Missing Husbands" at the Criterion and "The Cradle Buster" at the Cameo, all hold their screens.

PASSING IN REVIEW

"Sonny," Richard Barthelmess's latest and nearly best, is the venerable mother-love idea with reverse English and it gives this pleasing young star ample chance to thrum away on the heartstrings of Strand patrons this week.

Barthelmess, of all the galaxy of stars and near stars, knows best how to go just far enough with sentiment without boiling over and spilling the good impression. This trait, or whatever it may be, possessed by the young player, is amply and pleasantly kept to the fore in "Sonny" and it looks to us as though it was the best thing, by the way, that Barthelmess has ever done.

There are, however, two things that are, in our estimation, decidedly against "Sonny." First, it is a war story, or 99 44-100 a war story, and second, we don't believe there is a mother loving, blind or otherwise, who would accept the buddy of her slain son in mistake for her own loved one. Oh, we almost forgot the third 'agin' we discovered in the film. We do not think two persons ever lived who looked and acted and talked so much alike that no one, not even the mother of one, could tell them apart.

But then, this is in the movies and strange, strange things, do happen. It's a corking good film, though and one that will give you a nice, old-fashioned cry.

Men and Gold," the current screen-clutterer at the Capitol Theatre. If there was any dust on the South Sea Island on which most of the action took place about every one in the cast finally took a chew at it. A fine film for a warm night. It'll send you home all a shiver. The music is Capitol quality, which is the sterling mark in that line of entertainment.

"The Ordeal," the first story written especially for the screen by W. Somerset Maugham, doesn't live up to its name at all. It is certainly not an ordeal to sit through almost any film in which Agnes Ayres is the bright particular star, at least capacity audiences didn't find it so at the Rialto yesterday.

The story is the all-familiar one of a girl, wishing to keep her sister and brother in luxury and marrying a brute in order to get the money.

Then, when the brute dies, refusing to marry the man she loves because such a marriage would again place her on a lower rung of life's financial ladder.

It is all very weepy and is merely another proof that the woman pays and pays and pays, and never gets rid of the installment collector.

MILDRED HARRIS TO WED MUXSON IS REPORT

CHICAGO, May 29.—Mildred Harris, movie star, who divorced Charley Chaplin, was reported by friends to be engaged to Byron Campbell Munson, juvenile film actor. Munson, whose mother, Mrs. Arthur K. Munson, has caused two marriages of the twenty-two-year-old favorite annulled, said today he was "very much flattered" at the report. He said he had just returned from New York after frequently visiting Miss Harris.
